

Pitt Med Professionalism Accolade

CONGRATULATIONS!

Roger Klein, MD, PhD

PGY4 Resident

Department of Urology

Dr. Klein was a fantastic educator who went above and beyond to help teach the first-years pelvic anatomy. In addition to expertly assisting groups in dissecting and preserving relevant anatomy, Dr. Klein stayed for a couple of hours well after most groups had finished dissecting and had left the anatomy lab, repeatedly walking anyone who wanted through the various prosections around the room. Beyond simply teaching the gross anatomy, Dr. Klein integrated clinical pearls that helped to contextualize and solidify the importance of the anatomical relationships, extending into some of the functional actions of the structures that we would be expected to know for our didactic exam. After doing this, Dr. Klein then orchestrated a de facto anatomy practical, pointing to certain structures and asking for us to name them, reinforcing what he had just taught us. After the morning in the anatomy lab, I walked away having confidently learned the required anatomy of the pelvis and didn't need to further study it outside of class--a testament to Dr. Klein's exceptional teaching.

--Submitted by a medical student Medical Anatomy, Fall 2023

University of Pittsburgh

Office of the Learning
Environment
School of Medicine

www.ole.pitt.edu/PAIR