CONGRATULATIONS!

Henry Hoffman

MS1 Student

Henry's strong research background in Genetics was instrumental for my success in the Human Genetics course. Henry would thoroughly explain answer choices within practice questions to others for genetics, and offered to work with others outside of class time to understand the material. What was more impressive was that Henry was willing to admit when he did not have a conceptual understanding of a question, and would go out of his way to look within our syllabus and primary literature to make sure other students succeed. Henry's passion for genetics as a field and thorough, patient communication makes me sure that he will be well-suited to communicate genetics to others in his future career.
