

Pitt Med Professionalism Accolade

CONGRATULATIONS!

Morgan Bolger

MS2 Student

Morgan is intelligent, selfless, and a joy to work with. He consistently steps up to do the jobs no one wants to do in the interest of everyone's educational benefit. While he embodies these characteristics daily, two very specific examples come to mind. First, in our anatomy lab course, he consistently led the group through the most emotionally difficult dissection days and while bearing the brunt of the work, still checked in to make sure the rest of his group members were doing okay. Second, in our ultrasound elective, it was clear that none of the female students were comfortable lifting their shirts for the thorax and abdominal exam, so Morgan volunteered to have everyone practice on him and even got his own practice by ultrasounding himself.

--Submitted by a medical student Fall 2023

University of Pittsburgh

Office of the Learning
Environment
School of Medicine

www.ole.pitt.edu/PAIR